

Jim is from near Cleveland Ohio, attended the University of Michigan undergrad and medical school, interned at Philadelphia General, did his Residency back at the Cleveland VA/Case Western Reserve and endocrine fellowship at the University of Washington.

Following that he joined Kaiser Permanente and has been a clinician as chair of Diabetes in San Diego, the co-chair at Southern California Permanente Medical Group, and then to present as the diabetes lead Care Management Institute of Kaiser.

He has been a surfer, traveler, and is especially fond of his time getting 150 min/wk exercise with his labradoodle dog and grandchildren.
